

Making a difference in the lives of Canadians...

Saturday, April 2, 2011 at Staples in Brantford, Ontario

I enjoyed helping to raise money for the Cancer Society by having people donate money and receive their daffodil pin to support people with Cancer. That day, I raised almost $100 in just an hour time standing outside the Staples on Wayne Gretzky Parkway. The money I raised will go towards helping people to discover a cure for Cancer. Many people I knew came out to support the Cancer Society. They donated their money and I gave them their daffodil pin to wear. I also handed out flyers for the Daffodil brunch the following Sunday. This was another fundraiser to raise money for the Cancer Society. I hope that by volunteering my time to the Cancer Society, it will help the lives of Canadians who are living with Cancer, and to help find a cure. Shaun Nott
